

PARTIAL PEACE SEEMS NEAR IN RAILROAD SHOPMEN'S STRIKE

Union Policy Committee to Meet in Chicago Monday to Pass on Results of Leaders' Secret Conferences With "Moderate" Executives in East—Unions Following Lewis's Successful Coal Strike Peace Procedure.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Sept. 7.—Behind an enveloping mantle of secrecy, leaders of the six striking railway shopmen have borrowed a leaf from John L. Lewis's book, and are engaged today in a drive to secure a group of separate peace agreements with those executives who are known to constitute the "moderate" element in the Association of Railway Executives.

Underlying these efforts is the belief that once a partial peace is established, it will be only a question of time until, as in the case of the miners' strike, the agreements can be extended to embrace a national peace.

Just how successful the efforts have been to date cannot be revealed, it was said by labor spokesmen who confirmed the fact that negotiations are once more under way. Nor would they reveal the identity of the railway executives concerned, other than to describe them as the "moderates" who have been hard hit by the nine weeks' strike of the shopmen.

An important meeting of the strike leaders was held in Baltimore yesterday. It was learned today by the International News Service that the meeting followed two days' "work" in Baltimore by Bert M. Jewell, national director of the strike. Jewell checked out of the Emerson Hotel Tuesday. On Wednesday, the presidents of the six striking shopmen went to Baltimore, engaged a private room at the Emerson and held a five-hour session, beginning shortly after noon and continuing until 6 p. m.

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, and a recognized "moderate" among the executives, did not attend the meeting, but is known to have been in communication with it. After a five-hour session the strike chiefs broke up and scattered to various destinations last night preparatory to the meeting of the strikers' policy committee of ninety members in Chicago early next week.

How much progress toward the separate peace agreements was made at the Baltimore session, those attending declined to reveal.

In addition to the presidents of the six striking shopmen, the Baltimore session also was attended by E. H. Fitzgerald, head of the Order of Railway Clerks, part of whose organization went out on sympathetic, unauthorized strike, with the shopmen.

Spokesmen for the strike leaders asserted today that "the challenge" of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty for the strike leaders to be in court in Chicago next Monday when the permanency of the Daugherty injunction is to be argued, will be accepted. They pointed out that the strikers' policy committee has been summoned to Chicago early next week for the very purpose of being on hand.

Meantime it became known today that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor will meet in Washington instead of Atlantic City next Saturday to canvass sentiment for a general strike in retaliation for the drastic Daugherty injunction.

There is little likelihood of any general strike, but if Judge Wilkeson makes his temporary restraining order permanent in its present form, it is likely there will be a concerted protest from all of organized labor. This protest may take the form of a general strike of all organized labor for one day in order to impress upon the country the bitter resentment that labor feels towards the government's action.

Chicago, Sept. 7.—The dark clouds of the destructive labor-capital war of shopmen and railroad which threatened to involve all railroad brotherhoods and even so far as to bring about a general labor strike, were split with a widening rift of peace today.

Official call for a meeting of the shopmen's policy committee of ninety to vote on the proposed plan of settlement had gone to the members and decks were being cleared for action. The meeting will be held Monday morning at the Sheridan-Plaza Hotel here.

The order signed by B. M. Jewell, president of the striking shopmen's organization and sent out by John Scott, secretary, read:

"By authority vested in me as president of the railway employees' department, American Federation of Labor, I hereby call a meeting of the policy committee for 10 o'clock Monday morning at the Sheridan-Plaza Hotel, Chicago, and request that you attend."

The policy committee which consists of 90 men representing three divisions throughout the United States, has power to accept propositions which will end the national railroad strike.

The telegrams were sent out after a long distance communication between B. M. Jewell and John Scott. Jewell, who was "somewhere in the east" instructed Scott to order the three divisional committees to report in Chicago without fail.

The exact details of the proposition the leader of the striking shopmen will submit were unknown here, for since Jewell's trip to the east, there has been no communication with his officials and they are in the dark as to the peace plans.

That the meeting on Monday will be of the greatest moment in the industrial crisis that now confronts not only the nation but all organized labor, is known from the fact that Jewell has cut short his stay in the east and will return to Chicago promptly to confer with his executive council. Jewell was due to arrive in Chicago Monday. Instead, simultaneously with the telegrams to the divisional committees, telegrams were also sent to his executive council, ordering them to be in Chicago tomorrow to meet Jewell.

The council will go into executive session Saturday to consider the results of Jewell's negotiations in the east and lay plans for the meeting on Monday.

Hope that this meeting will bring peace ran high among labor men, though all were wary of comment. The meeting which will determine what is believed to be the end of the strike, is scheduled to take place almost at the same hour that Attorney General Daugherty will plead before Judge Wilkeson for making the injunction against the strikers permanent.

Favorable action by the policy committee on Mr. Jewell's proposals would mean an almost immediate end of the strike for no vote of the strikers is necessary and Jewell is understood to have arranged most of the important details of a settlement during his trip to the east.

Secretary Scott, after his telephone talk with Jewell over the meeting to be held Monday, said the shopmen's leaders were incensed over reports that they had attempted to dodge service of the Daugherty injunction.

"Formal publication in newspapers of the injunction constitutes legal service," Scott said. "Their absence is explained entirely by the news of the secret meetings held in the east. The plans will go right ahead without any one paying any attention to the injunction."

CAR LOADINGS STILL INCREASE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Figures indicating that the strike of railway shopmen is losing its effectiveness, were published by the American Association of Railway Executives here today.

They showed that loading of revenue freight on American railroads for the week ending August 26, totaled $90,538 cars, exceeding the preceding week by 34,619.

Most of the increase in loadings were noted in coal cars.

DONATION PARTY FOR HOME FOR AGED

October 12th, has been set aside as the date for the donation party for the benefit of the Home for the Aged of Ulster county, located in this city. This institution has long since proved that it is doing a great good in our community in that it is giving real home comfort to so many elderly people who otherwise would be far from comfortable in their declining years. While it is not a "charity" in so far as those making up the "family" are concerned, since they make a certain payment, still this income does not fully maintain the institution by any means; with the cost of living what it is. For this reason the home has a yearly "donation day," for some time. This year the friends of the Home for the Aged and all interested in the home are asked to plan to give food from the farm and the garden, pickled foods, canned foods, etc., as that is the great need. Thanks to the past generosity of friends, neither furniture nor clothing will be needed this fall.

FORESTRY WORKERS GET USED TO STRANGE COMPANY.

Two Vocational Talks at Weekly Kiwanis Meeting.

Frank Dumond, a Kingston youth in the United States forestry service, and Newton H. Fessenden, member of the Kiwanis Club luncheon today, the former telling of a profession the public knows comparatively little about and Mr. Fessenden giving a thumb nail sketch of "Lawyers."

Mr. Dumond, who is a graduate of Cornell and Yale in forestry, has been stationed in Montana and California the past couple of years, part of the time as fire observer in a little log cabin on top of a mountain 7,100 feet high, miles from any other habitation. His only company the bears that came from miles around to eat the huckleberries that grew there, and water for his purposes obtainable only by melting snow from banks in front of the cabin door that were still 30 and 40 feet deep in August. He told interestingly of the actual work of conserving the country's timber supply and said that New York state was among the most progressive along this line, with prospects that it would maintain its lead.

Attorney Fessenden in the brief time allotted him was merely able to recount some of the achievements of members of the Ulster county bar which has produced many lawyers capable of coping with the best legal brains in the country, some of them still alive and practicing.

The attendance prize was given by Emil Boessneck and won by Floyd Powell.

HAROLD MOWERS SENT TO RANDALL'S ISLAND

She started from the French coast and had completed all but four miles of the France-to-England swim when compelled by exhaustion to give up.

The telephone fuse was burned out and several windows in the house broken. At the time Mrs. Moore was not near the telephone and does not know how she received her shock and burns.

Throughout the day the city had sweated under the terrific heat and thermometers registered 96 degrees early in the afternoon shortly before the storm broke. While the storm brought welcome relief from the heat it was followed by a quick drop in temperature.

Visitors May View THE BEAUTIFUL GARDENS

Kingston has many rarely beautiful gardens as has Saugerties; gardens that are a delight to see and remember. Some of the managers of the teams have expressed the opinion that games could be played each day in the week, starting at 5:30 p. m., except on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Among the teams that will be asked to attend a meeting in November when the project may be launched are the Colonials of Kingston, the Bonackers of Rensselaer, the D. & H. Generals of Watervliet, Green Island Kaysees, Schenectady Kaysees, Oneonta, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh and possibly Hudson or the Amsterdam Kaysees.

TALK WILL DELAY ENDING OF STRIKE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Sept. 7.—Ratification of the Reed-Pepper plan accepted last Saturday by the anthracite miners and now before a tri-district convention of the United Mine Workers of America, will not come before Saturday. But it will surely come.

President John L. Lewis and the hard coal presidents, just before opening the second day's session, announced that there will be no steam roller tactics permitted.

Every man who wants to talk will be given the opportunity and if the convention cannot complete its work this week, then as much of the next will be taken as is necessary.

Numerous insurgents were their red cards this morning with the message: "Stick to the finish. Out to win." Insurgents were at the entrance of the hall offering these cards to any and all, but they found few takers.

Society Notes

A Farewell Party.

A farewell party was given in honor of Charles M. McCarthy at the home of David Ebel on Pine Grove avenue Wednesday evening. The spacious sitting and dining rooms were converted into a ballroom for the occasion and the young couples enjoyed themselves immensely.

Those present were the Misses Lay, the Misses O'Mara, and Miss Scully and Miss Lane, and the Messrs. McCarthy, Dubois, Heitzelman, Mosier, Buchholtz and Ebel. Delicious refreshments were served and enjoyed by all. The party lasted until a late hour and all departed wishing Charles a safe trip to Detroit.

Countess Mather.

A quiet home wedding was solemnized at 1 o'clock, September 3rd, when Miss Ethel Mather of Suffern, N. Y., became the bride of Tracy S. Countess of Clintonville. The ceremony was performed under a beautiful floral arch at the home of the groom by the Rev. Albert Shepherd of the Clintonville Friends Church. Laura A. Barnard, a school chum attended with George Harold Sutton, both of Clintonville. Mrs. Zina Constant of Tilton, played the wedding march. The bride is a graduate of the New Paltz Normal class of 1921, and has taught school at Pearl River, N. Y., the past year. The groom is a graduate of the Highland High School and of the International Correspondence School of Electric Engineering of Scranton, Pa. Among the out of town guests were the Rev. Y., where he is connected with the Southern Dutchess Gas & Electric Co. Both have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy married life.

Many Enjoy The Dansante.

The third of the series of The Dansante held at Watson Hollow Inn on Wednesday afternoon and evening, proved to be possibly the most delightful in spite of the afternoon's heavy shower. The pumpkin room was made most attractive with gay Japanese lanterns, throwing their varied colored lights upon the dancers, while the porches were also made festive with other Japanese lanterns, turning the old inn into quite a fairy land. Delightful music was rendered by Steinhilber's orchestra of Woodstock, while the program of dancing was charmingly varied with solo dances, notable among which was a very artistic solo dance, improvised and given with extreme grace by Miss Phelps of Saugerties, a student at the School of Dramatic Arts, New York city. Besides thoroughly enjoying the dancing, some sixty-odd guests enjoyed supper, either on the porches or in the attractive rooms of the inn.

Among the guests were Mrs. Amfield, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Skinner, New York city; Miss Minam Pitt, Miss Adele Mason, John N. DeWitt, Thomas H. Clearwater, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rusk, Cragmoor; Mrs. Frank Phelps and Miss Beulah Phelps, Saugerties; Frances Keeney and Mrs. Alan Burhans, Saugerties; William J. Dwyer, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. George Stenchen, the Misses Corse, Saugerties; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clum, Santiago, Cuba; Mr. Clum being our consul to Cuba; Mrs. T. V. Brown, Kingston; Mrs. D. ## LABOR UNION BEGINS SUIT TO SET ASIDE DAUGHERTY INJUNCTION

Electrical Workers File Suit in District of Columbia to Restrain Federal Officials From Enforcing the Restraining Order Granted by the Court in Chicago.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Striking railway workers today started counter legal action against the government to prevent the agents of Attorney General Daugherty from interfering with the affairs of the union.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, one of the striking shopcraft unions, filed suit in the supreme court of the District of Columbia for an injunction restraining Peyton Gordon, federal district attorney, and Edgar C. Snyder, United States marshal, from carrying out the terms of the drastic restraining order which Attorney General Daugherty secured in Chicago.

The suit is the first legal retaliatory blow struck by organized labor against the government's institution of legal proceedings in Chicago.

In effect, the electrical workers' suit asked that the federal court of the District of Columbia nullify the action of the federal court in Chicago, by restraining the government's agents from all interference with union activities. The suit asked particularly that the government's agents be restrained from interfering with "the lawful and peaceful meetings" of the union.

The electrical workers' bill set forth that the organization has never counselled nor been guilty of acts of violence or unlawful activities in connection with the present strike and attached to it was a copy of general orders sent out to the membership at the beginning of the strike, counselling against any unlawful acts.

It also set forth that the officers of the union have not been served with the injunction, but had seen it in the newspapers, along with "threats" by the United States marshal and the district attorney to prevent their peaceful, lawful meetings and it was against these "threats" that the union desired the court's protection.

74 NEW HOUSES BEING BUILT HERE

At the present time there are seventy-four new houses actually under construction in Kingston. This does not include the houses that have been completed and are now occupied this season. The past year has proven an exceptionally busy one for the building trades with all of the new construction work in progress. The addition of a number of new dwellings in the city will have a decided tendency toward solving the housing problem here.

WOMEN PICKETS UNDER ARREST

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Sept. 7.—For the fourth time since the Bradford county courts granted a permanent injunction restraining rail and shop strikers from picketing and trespassing on company property, fourteen women were today served with attachments at Sayre. Seven men are also charged with violation of the court decree.

The arrests are the result of outbreaks at Sayre. Passenger trains were stoned and bricks were hurled. Strikers and strike sympathizers believed they could defeat the law by remaining from the forbidden ground and turning the strike work over to their wives. The injunction was granted the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

No date has been set for the hearing of the actions started today.

RAILROAD DAM IS DYNAMITED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Sept. 7.—The Beaver Run Reservoir of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, the largest water supply of the company, was blown up last night and millions of gallons of water released, which caused considerable damage to the company property. It became known here today.

Only meagre reports have reached here but officials from this section were dispatched to the scene this morning.

Strikers are blamed by the railroad police for the dynamiting. Company detectives have been on the lookout for men who were reported to have concealed large quantities of dynamite on company property. The blowing out of the dam is believed to be a part of that plot.

All the available detectives of two divisions of the Lehigh Valley Railroad police have been sent to the scene.

CHICK EVANS FAR IN LEAD

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 7.—Chick Evans, playing well within himself was the only contestant in the third round of the national amateur golf championship, who obtained a substantial lead over an opponent in the first 18 holes of the 36-hole matches today at the Country Club.

Evans led Frank Godchaux of New Orleans, by four holes. The other matches were being closely contested. To the surprise of a large gallery, Billy McPhall, from Boston's public links, held fast to the great Bobby Jones of Atlanta, and stood level with him at the end of their morning game.

Jesse Gullford, present champion and Jesse Sweetser, metropolitan champion, were engaged in a great battle, with Sweetser one up at the eighteenth, where he holed a 20-foot putt for a three. Sweetser was two down at the thirteenth, but put on a fine finish to take the lead.

Cyril Tolley of England, and Rudolph Knopfer of Sioux City, furnished the international flavor to the play. Knopfer, by holding a 14-foot putt on the home green for a birdie three, led the British golfer by two holes.

AGREE ON SKIRTS

Paris Artists Say Near-Ankle Length Is Correct.

Designers Vote for Moderately Full Garment Which Permits View of the Ankles.

At the races we have seen the "War of Skirts" illustrated, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the Boston Globe. Skirts of all lengths and almost all widths have been worn, and by the smartest women. A really serious protest has been made in Paris, and in London, against long walking skirts which would be certain to catch up dust or mud. When the Paris designers say "full length," they describe a skirt which comes very near the ground indeed. In fact, it sweeps the ground when one steps off a footpath into the street. In London the protest has taken serious form. All the best-known artists—painters, black and white designers, etc., have joined in the battle and it is a little difficult to see what the end will be. In Paris, the leading dressmakers simply smile. They say "long skirts will be worn in Paris—therefore, they will surely be worn all over the world by fashionable women."

I must say that from personal observation at the most fashionable race meetings that the moderately short skirt—and by that I mean one which shows the ankles—is much more becoming to the average woman than the dress which almost hides the feet.

Frock of Lemon Yellow Charmeuse and Organdie Sapphire-Blue Ribbons.

And that all eminent painters agree with me in this. I have discussed the matter with several well-known designers and all have voted for a moderately full skirt which permits a view of neat ankles. Hats are important. Or they are so full that they look like evening head-dresses. The wide-brimmed hat covered with stretched tulle or satin is saying all before it. Side by side with these models we have similar shapes covered with soft glove kid and lined with plaited crepe de chine or chiffon. And in the millinery world flowers are everywhere. Strange, and little unnatural, flowers made of glove kid, shells, metallic net, velvet or organdie muslin. And a favorite trimming for a wide-brimmed hat is a thick wreath of small flowers and fruit mixed.

PRETTY FOR SUMMER FROCKS

Embroidered Medallions, Decorative Feature, Enhance the Beauty of Milady's Skirt.

Pretty little embroidered medallions are to be used on frocks this summer. The finds them mostly with little frills of the material gathered or pleated about them, and the material itself forming the base of the pretty thing. Upon the material is an embroidered motif, preferably by hand. When a mill is not used for a frame the medallion can have a binding of material in contrasting color, possibly a color to match the color of the embroidery. The medallions are used principally upon frock skirts. Picture, for example, a yellow and white gingham in the latest checks ornamented with red medallions, frilled, having in the center tiny baskets of flowers cross-stitched in black.

Soft Collars on Capses.

Coat and cape wraps are being shown with soft collars that fit high to the back of the neck. Occasionally the collars are finely worked with white embroidery. Sometimes the collars are of tulle in a shade to match the lining of the wraps. Thus a tobacco-colored wrap lined with olive green has an olive-green georgette collar. It is possible also to have a gown match-

IDEAL FOR THE PROMENADE

Like a gorgeous orange and white butterfly is this winsome costume of heavy crepe. It is attractive for outdoor occasions.

"SYMPHONIES IN ONE COLOR"

Paris Dressmakers Predict Frocks, Capes and Shoes Are to Be of Matching Shades.

The return to simple organdie dresses, with extended hips, as in the days of Louis XIV, is promulgated by the big Paris dressmakers, who are displaying their midsummer models. These "period" dresses all have the appearance of old-fashioned crinolines, but can be worn without corsets, an element in women's dresses regarded as absolutely essential to the proper effect of dress in the time of Louis XIV.

Having decided that frocks must have capes to match, fashion creators have decreed that shoes must now be worn to match the cape and dress. Paris shoemakers, therefore, have begun the manufacture of summer shoes of all shades, brick red, oyster and beige being the three colors most in demand.

Under this new dictum of fashion, women this summer, to quote one Paris dressmaker, will be "symphonies in one color." There will be no mixture or blending of colors. Every woman will have gown, cape, stockings and shoes of the same shade.

Dressmakers now feel they will be amply compensated for the long reign of black, whose reign made the woman's wardrobe some 50 per cent cheaper than it is today.

MAKE INDOOR CAPS OF LACE

Dainty Headcovering May Be Made From Square Handkerchief; Ties Under Chin.

Instead of the commonplace bouffant cap which every bride buys for the trousseau, why not make a square lace handkerchief, line it with pink, or pale yellow chiffon or net and tie it about the head, the ends under the chin in the Ellen Terry fashion? The milliners revived this idea for hats last summer. The handkerchief should be placed merely across the top of the head, not around it. The ends should be tied in a butterfly bow directly beneath the chin. There may be a rose or two over the ear. These squares made in chiffon to match the color of the negligee are charming. There is also the wide forehead band of lace which ties at the back with lace ends and has a tiny bandeau of rosebuds at its top. It was once designed to hide curl papers. Now it's for coquetry.

WORN BY THE WEDDING PARTY

White Chiffon, Tulle, Periwinkle and Orchid Favored Materials for Nuptial Event.

For the wedding party, white chiffon embroidered in pearls, draped over white satin, had been selected for the wedding gown, a long court train and a Valenciennes lace veil falling from a coronet of orange blossoms, completing the bridal costume.

Lavender tulle, shot with silver for the maid of honor, had a matching hat of lavender straw, in picture shape, mounted with hydrangeas.

Six bridesmaids were dressed alike, in tulle frocks, two in periwinkle, two in lavender and two in orchid, all wearing trimmed leghorns, trimmed in hydrangeas.

Black chandilly lace was worn by the bride's mother, her costume completed with a lavender hat.

Blouses of Pongee.

Tailored effects in pongee blouses with shirt front developed in tiny tucks, quarter-inch bands of tight plaiting or the combination of these two are very smart, while a perfectly simple development, decorative only on collar and cuffs, allows for solid pin tucking or an edge of frilled material. Peter Pans monopolize the necklines and are considered very much more popular for the coming season than the tuxedo, though both must be offered.

Hats With Feat Crowns.

The hats with felt crowns promise to be very popular. The crown is usually of a bright color and there is a wide diversity in brims. These may be of millan, leghorn, crepe or any of the novelty brims.

THE SHOE MODES

Black Has Advantage Over Sand and Gray Shades.

Variety Is Afforded by Wearing Stockings of Any of the Grays or Browns, Writer Says.

It is the little things that count, observes a fashion writer. This well-worn bromide saying is more of a truism when applied to dress than anything else. It is the little mistakes in dress that spoil the otherwise perfect costume. One may be ever so careful in the choice of a gown, paying any amount of money for it, but ruin its effect by the choice of a pair of shoes, stockings, gloves or any other of the small essentials that go to make up the correct toilet.

Shoes are especially confusing at this time when so much is offered in the way of variety. It is easy for the novel and the bizarre to usurp the place of good taste.

The feet should be beautifully shod, but not in a way to attract undue attention to them. Nor should one wear shoes that in any way detract from the costume with which they are worn. The woman who cannot afford a complete shoe wardrobe such as is necessary in following shoe fashions today would do well to adhere to black or the neutral beige and gray tones.

Black has an advantage over the sand and gray shades, either singly or used in combinations, in that it can be worn with any costume and with any of the hundreds of brown, beige, or amber tones, as well as with the ever-popular grays. Then again variety may be obtained by wearing stockings of one of the numerous shades of gray or brown.

Colors or styles in dresses and suits have had practically no effect on footwear this season.

GUIMPES IN NET AND LACE

Soft, Fluffy Effects in Neckwear, the Important Item of the Present Season.

Frilled guimpes in net and lace are the big items in neckwear at present, soft, fluffy effects.

Ecru is considered better than white for this type, as the effect is richer and more in harmony with one's costume. These guimpes are designed for wear with elaborate suits rather than tweed models. For tweeds and simpler frocks there is a charming colored organdie guimpe with hand scalloped platts and insertions of white beading.

Another type that is selling well is the patchwork or Normande, which combines Valenciennes, Irish, filet, baste medallions, and even hand embroidery and tulle net. It is notable that parallel ruffles of Valenciennes are used a great deal on the neckwear.

A guimpe of eyelet work was unusual and distinctive. These lace and net effects are now being made in filet as well as guimpe effects. Collars are also made to match them.

No great sale of collar and cuffs is reported at present, but it is believed the organdie sets will be very good later in the season, especially for wear with sport costumes.

Battenberg Rings.

These old Battenberg rings that have been discarded so long have a new use—when buttonhole stitched over with silk or wool they are cunning little pendants to hang from the neck of a blouse or finish a girdle or sash. Some recently seen were covered with red wool and hung from the slit opening of a dark blue canton crepe overblouse. The Battenberg rings have possibilities for trimming the sport hats or making a girdle. Their success all depends upon a pretty color scheme. If crocheted over with dark blue silk, why not run a silver ribbon through to make a chic girdle?

Stylish Outfit.

A white crepe de chine frock seen recently for a six to eight-year-old was cut on straight lines, bound all around with red self fabric, and had red bloomers. The frock was opened at either side to about five inches above the skirt edge, the red binding extending all around the slashed section. A stitched hat of the red was worn with this frock.

HAT FOR THE SUMMER DRESS

This is a pretty shade of orchid in horsehair braid. It is a lovely shade for the delicate summer dress. The grapes of earth are different shades of purple and orchid.

THE "SETTLEMENT."

The so-called settlement of the anthracite coal strike is merely an agreement, under political persuasion, on the part of the operators and miners to suspend their quarrel for a year and reopen the mines. The only gain is the promise of a commission to investigate and report, as dozens of previous ones have done without important results. During the five months of the strike the miners have lost in wages and the operators in business. Doubtless the latter will more than make up their loss in future profiteering, but the former have only the unsatisfactory satisfaction of knowing that they have not yielded and that they will renew the fight after providing for the winter's bread and butter.

As for the public, it has already lost greatly in the check upon industry, and, as usual, the private consumer may count on paying practically all the costs. Enough coal to supply the demand will be long in coming, and, though with a return to the status quo there should be no increase in price, scarcity inevitably brings higher costs. The consumer, shivering in the north wind and in a hurry to fill his coal bins, will pay anything that is demanded of him. And so, as heretofore, only the operators will profit. It is a satisfaction to know that the public is relieved of the menace of an actual coal famine in mid-winter, but it is a mistake to speak of as settled a coal strike which is only temporarily suspended and leaves the consumer the shorn lamb as usual and practically hopeless of any really satisfactory adjustment in the future. Anything like a permanent settlement, with justice to all concerned, appears to be as far away as ever.

HATING THE TRUTH.

Judges, too, must refrain from stating facts unless the Anti-Saloon League of New York first approves of the statement, or they will also be open to attack by the League. Even the United States Supreme Court is not immune.

William H. Anderson, superintendent of the League, and his staff, have issued a statement that "the friends of law and order will be pleased" at the retirement of Justice Clarke of the United States Supreme Court bench, because of his "attack" on the prohibition law.

The only public utterance of Justice Clarke on the subject was an after-dinner speech in which he said:

"The Eighteenth Amendment required millions of men and women to abruptly give up habits and customs of life which they thought not immoral or wrong, but which, on the contrary, they believed to be necessary to their reasonable comfort and happiness, and thereby, as we all know, respect not only for that law but for all law, has been put to an unprecedented and demoralizing strain in our country, the end of which it is difficult to see."

If Justice Clarke had sounded the prohibition tom-tom by saying that the Volstead act had completely driven spirituous beverages out of America, he would have been hailed by the Anti-Saloon League as the champion of truth, although everybody would know that such a statement would be a lie.

Noting the change of the name of Edgar A. Poe Square in Boston, the Springfield Republican remarks that "if any protest is being made in the realm of shades, it requires no great effort of the imagination to believe that the author's spirit is not content among the remonstrants." Undoubtedly he wouldn't be. Poe did not like Boston, his accidental birthplace, and at least a part of the reason is not far to seek. Boston, or its literary lights of the old days, did not like Poe. They heartily disapproved of his great European reputation and in effect held that it was an impertinence, in view of Boston's opinion. The change now noted is less surprising than was the naming of a Boston square after the unaccepted poet.

After shooting a few thousand of the "intelligentsia" the Bolshevik government is rapidly getting rid of the brains left in Russia, the deportation of 200 professors, authors, and journalists who have offended by more or less plain speech being now in progress. But the effort to make Russia an intellectual desert can not wholly succeed. In these times young men of vision are bound to get from under the tyrants' heel long enough to become vocal.

A man has been poisoned to death by druggist's whisky obtained on a physician's prescription. Perhaps the only kind that is now entirely trustworthy is sold by our Government on its passenger ships. It is bought in Great Britain.

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

September 1922.
By ROBERTSON BISHOP, JR.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Does tapping pine trees hurt the wood?
2. What is the right name of the chicken hawk? Is it the same as a hen hawk?
3. Is spider-bite poisonous?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. What bait will muskrats take in a trap?
They are fond of vegetables and some sweetish fruits, like apple. Try that or some of the root vegetables like carrot, turnip, etc., or chunks of squash.

2. Can mosquitoes be repelled by planting any special trees or bushes? We fear not. There are reports that eucalyptus trees, castor-oil-bean bushes, etc., will keep off mosquitoes, but localities where the trees were well established have been known to be well populated with mosquitoes. It is possible there may be sections planted with eucalyptus which happen to be free from mosquitoes, due to good drainage, absence of swampy neighborhoods, etc., but no credit is due the tree.

3. I enclose a clipping stating the English sparrow, bulfinch and wood pigeon are pests. Is this true?
The clipping was from a London, England, paper. We cannot comment on the writer's local statement. "Wood" pigeon is an indefinite title, probably referring to the ring dove, Columba palumbus, which does at times bother English farmers owing to its stealing grain as an addition to its natural diet of acorns and beech mast. We do not know the economic status of the bulfinch. Most Americans would agree on calling the house sparrow a pest.

GARDEN CLUB AT FORSYTH HOME

Frost Accuses Many Birds Of Doing More Harm Than Good In Gardens.—Election Of Officers In October.

A meeting of the Ulster Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. Forsyth on Tuesday afternoon. It was announced at the meeting that the annual election of officers will be held at the meeting at Mrs. Finch's on the first Tuesday in October.

An invitation has been extended to the Garden Club by Mrs. Saar to visit the dahlia gardens at Yama Farms next Tuesday. All the members of the club will be able to accept are asked to notify Mrs. Fowler not later than Monday of next week.

Mrs. Seering, who was the chairman for the day, introduced the speaker Allan Frost of Poughkeepsie, whose subject was "The Importance of Birds to the Garden." Mr. Frost said that birds are not entirely beneficial to the garden. Although their principal food is insects, no one bird feeds entirely upon the injurious insect. Interesting tests have been made in California in which it has been determined that warblers, wrens, and vireos eat 95% seed food also the wrens and the domestic sparrows eat 12% animal food. The common English sparrow has a very bad reputation as it is known that he does 98% harm and only 2% good in the garden. The rose breasted grosbeak, shy and difficult to see, is also of doubtful value. His favorite diet is fruit and pea vines, although he also eats smartweed and bind weed seeds in quantities. The house wren is the most entirely beneficial and is easy to attract. Mr. Baldwin of Ohio has made some very interesting experiments in banding birds. By this means he has discovered much about the migrations and ages of birds. In one instance a house wren returned to nest in his garden for nine years in succession.

The cat bird, which is a common garden bird, is said to do more harm than good as its chief food is fruit and it is also said to destroy young birds. The chipping sparrow eats grapes, but it also feeds largely on the insects which destroy pea vines. Even our robins are harmful where there is an abundance of cultivated fruit. Then the starling has some virtues, eats some good and some injurious insects. But he doesn't do enough good to offset the harm he does. He drives out the other birds. Although he was brought over from England to drive out the English sparrow, they have fraternized. All the domestic sparrows are more beneficial than harmful. Both the nuthatch and goldfinch are as useful and helpful as attractive. The purple grackle is of doubtful good as it destroys young birds and eggs.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, Sept. 7.—The guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamel of Esopus closed the summer season at that place on Sunday night, September 3rd, with a farewell party. The festivities began early in the evening and continued without interruption until early in the morning. Dancing was indulged in by all those present. Mr. Lang entertained with a few recitations, the Misses Suesman and Guernsey gave a few ukulele solos, and also some modern dances. The guests were also kept in a continual uproar by the comical antics of Mr. Lang and Mr. Suesmann. Piano solos were given by Henry Sand and violin solos by Herman Kinas. It was unanimously agreed that the affair was a most successful one and all agreed that if this party was a sample of what summer life was at Hamel's farm house, the time was well spent and that another year would no doubt bring all hands together again. Among those present beside the family of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamel were Mrs. Kinas and Herman Kinas of Guttenberg, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. William Lang and family from New York city, Mrs. Thomas Hill and family, also of New York. Mrs. Nelson and granddaughter and Arnold Nelson, Henry Sand and G. Gueno, all of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Suesmann, the Messrs. Wilton and Charles Suesmann, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Schmitz and family and Mrs. Hope and family of West Hoboken, N. J., and Miss Jeanette Suesmann and Miss Alma Guernsey, all of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. L. Paret and the Misses Katherine and Tessie Paret of West Hoboken, N. J., and the Messrs. Howard and Arthur Donna of New York city. Refreshments were served at the close.

Sight of Fishes.

To the fish the surface of the water, seen from below, presents a circular window surrounded by mirrors, according to Edward Ringwood Hewitt, author of "Secrets of the Salmon." It seems that a fish can see out into the air only through a limited aperture; everywhere else the surface reflects the contents of the stream, or (if it be a shallow one) the bottom. This is because the light rays passing from water to air are bent, and when the angle of the light ray from the fish's eye with the vertical becomes great enough, it is bent backward so that it does not enter the air at all, but is directed downward toward the bottom.

Much Easier.

Two men were discussing golf courses in general, and a pretty little nine-hole course in particular. Eventually the conversation turned to a certain eighteen-hole course close to the other one. "I always think," commented one to the other, "that the little nine-hole course is far more difficult than that eighteen-hole course." "Well, one would expect it to be so," exclaimed a lady friend, who, needless to add, did not play golf. "Why?" asked the two men, simultaneously. "Why, it is obviously easier to get a little ball into one of the holes when there are eighteen. It would be twice as hard when there are only nine!"

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Sept. 7.—Auxiliary Club day was held last Friday at the M. E. Church parlor. About 30 were present and were cordially greeted by the hostesses, Mrs. M. Malloch, Mrs. I. C. Dayton and Miss Bertha Dimsey. The devotional exercises, as usual, conducted by the Rev. F. A. Coons and wife, proved churchly. Afterward business was taken up. Business and social activities were discussed, and we think for character, quality and volume of work Auxiliary women will bear comparison with that of any similar bodies. They have several committees and all are workers. At this meeting several topics of interest came before the house and later on will be divulged. When the gavel fell for the social, everyone just made the most of it. The hostesses served most delicious iced watermelon in abundance and it was enjoyed and appreciated and when all left for their homes they expressed their pleasure to the ladies who had been so hospitable to the club members.

A great many from this place attended the Dutchess county fair at Rhinebeck the past week and report everything first class.

Harold Van Kleeck of this place is wiring houses for electric lights. He has just completed wiring a house in New Paltz and has wired several in this place. His work has proven satisfactory both by the inspector and those he worked for.

BLACKSNAKE GOSSIP

"There was once someone," said the Blacksake, "who talked to some people about gossip. This talker told the people that it was bad, to gossip, and that they must keep from talking about others."

"The talker told how it got people into trouble and caused unhappiness and sorrow. And then the talker told the people to each take the talk to themselves and not think it was intended for their neighbors."

"But alas, and alack, the people talked of how the talk had been just such a talk as their neighbors needed, and didn't take the lesson to heart as they should have done."

"Now I am hoping that people will take my lesson to heart."

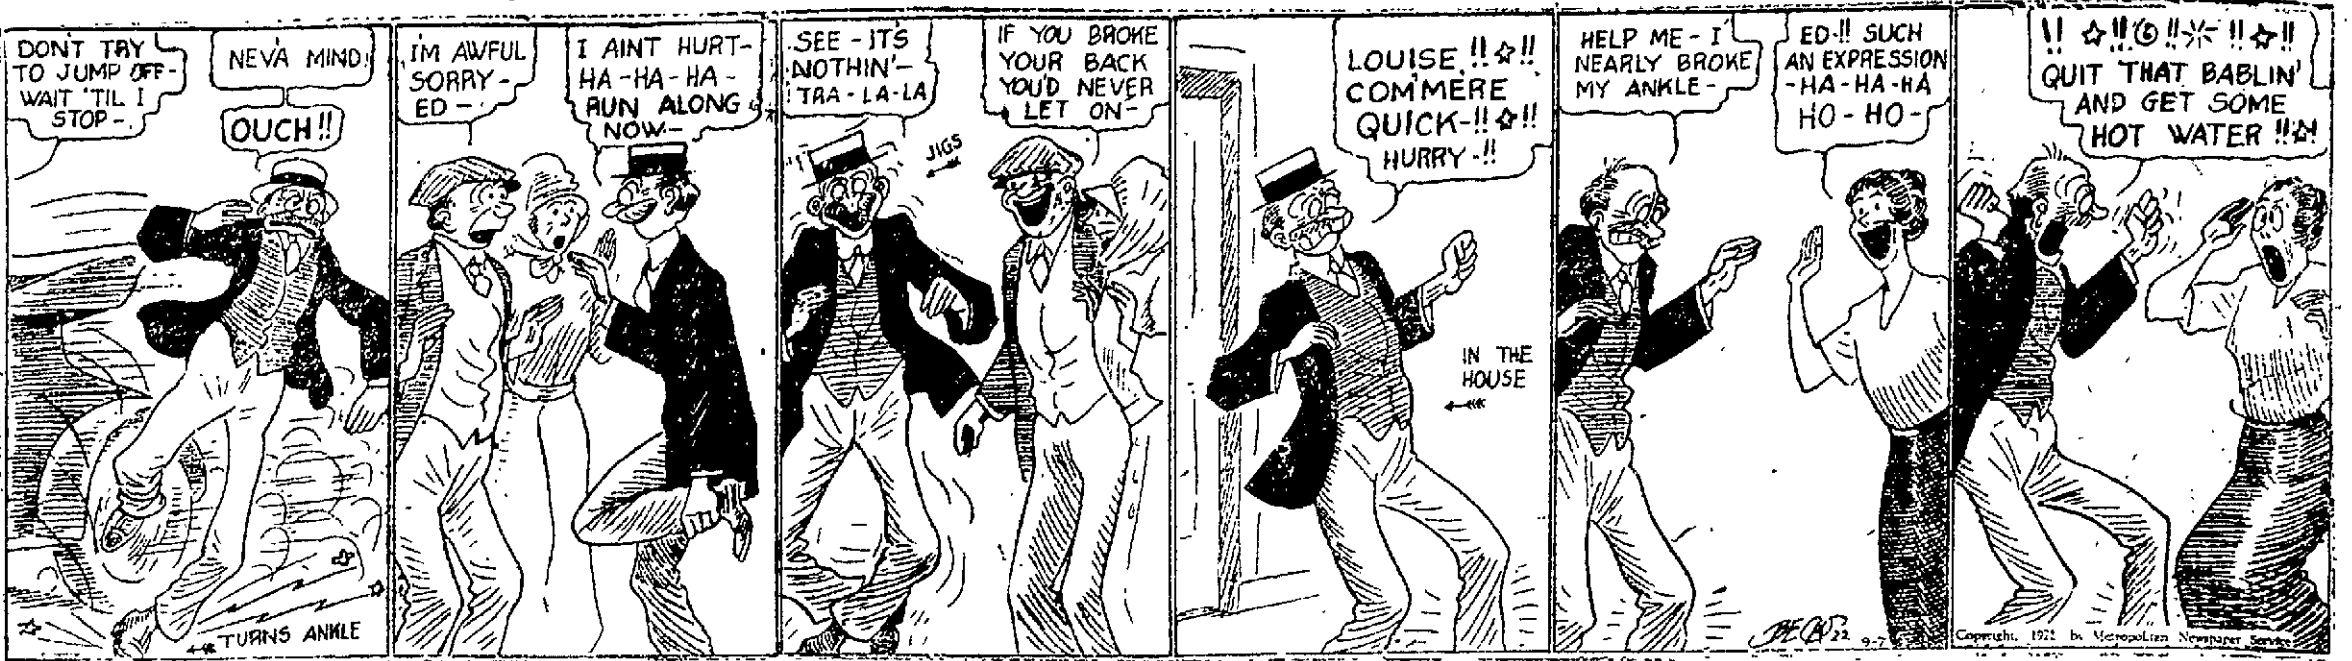

"I hope they will not say that they do not gossip but will listen to my talk and will take pains to undo the harm that has been done and not gossip ever, ever again."

"Such gossip has gone about regarding me and regarding my family. 'But by hit I shall talk of the stories that have been told about me, and I will tell of how untrue they are.'"

"In the first place of all I do not squeeze my prey until it is killed. I am not a constrictor, and a constrictor does that."

"I have never done that and I will never do that, though people will often say that the Blacksake does do that.

"In the second place I do not attack the rattlesnake. And why should I? He is a bigger creature than I am. I am a good-sized creature. It is true. In fact, I am very long and I'd be considered anywhere a good-sized snake."

"But Mr. Rattlesnake is not an interesting snake to me. He is too big. I prefer nice little snakes of smaller size."

"I'm not above eating a smaller snake. Oh, no, I'm not above that. And I suppose that is the way the story got about that I attacked the Rattlesnake."

"That is the way with stories. They're founded, perhaps, on just a little scrap of truth, and then they are added to and added to until they're nothing at all like the story was in the first place."

"I suppose some one said that we are smaller snakes than ourselves. And then the story was spread about and added to until it was said we even ate Rattlesnakes."

"I admit that we do like smaller snakes. We haven't any reason for not liking them. They're very good little snakes; that is, snakes smaller than we are we consider very good."

"But we don't go after Rattlesnakes. We keep away from them, hiss, hiss. We don't like Rattlesnakes. No, no indeed hiss, hiss, hiss."

"Then it has been said about us that we go after people and jump for them. This is not true at all."

"If we are cornered we will fight bravely, but we do not go after people."

"We're not fond of them and we keep out of the way of them. And yet this untrue story has gone about that we go after people and that we are very dangerous to them because we go seeking them."

"I hope that all this gossip will be stopped before long, for, it is most unfair."

"I like to have the truth known about me, but I do not like to hear gossip."

"I don't gossip about other snakes and I don't gossip about people. So I wish they wouldn't gossip about me!"

"I wish that tremendously. I have also heard that I can look at a bird so that the bird doesn't know which way to move, and that I make the bird stay quite still just by looking at him."

"They say that I do this so as to capture the bird quite easily."

"But I can't look at a bird so he'll stay quite still. I can't do anything like that. That is a most untrue story."

"If I looked at a bird he wouldn't stay quite still until I caught him, no, indeed, I know better than that."

"So, everybody, please remember what I've said, and don't gossip about the poor old Blacksake. It is most unkind, for what you say isn't true!"

The Nobel prize-winners are selected by the Swedish academy and the Norwegian storting, or parliament, four by the former and one by the latter. Nationality has nothing to do with the choice. During the short time that the prizes have been awarded the principal countries of Europe, as well as the United States, have been recognized by the selectors. The Peace prize is the one awarded by the Norwegian storting. Those whose duty it is to award these prizes of world-wide fame are naturally always on the look-out for works of merit in the various departments. But, no doubt, they have many claims for investigation from those who feel that their work entitles them to some consideration.

COAL CAR PROCESSION INTERRUPTS CROSSING TRAFFIC

Congestion at West Shore and Broadway Wednesday.

For half an hour Wednesday evening between 7:30 and 8 o'clock the Broadway crossing of the West Shore railroad presented a lively moving picture. First a south bound train of 75 N. Y. Central empty large steel coal cars rolled over Broadway, fully a hundred automobiles being held up for a few minutes on each side of the crossing gates. Hardly had the coal train gone by and the autos let over the tracks, when the gates went down to allow a train of 11 empty box cars go north, holding up another lot of autos bound up and down Broadway. Right after came the way freight from the south with some loaded fruit cars for the Boston market, it being followed by Train 13, the up passenger train with the New York evening papers which train was about half an hour late. The movement of the many empty coal cars is considered a sure indication that the coal strike is coming to a close.

The Original Chinese.

J. F. Rock, adventurous plant hunter, reports from Kengtung, Burma, to the Agricultural department at Washington, that he has found a village of the original Chinese referred to in the oldest historical book of China, which dates back two thousand years before Christ. "They are called Shiao," he says, "and do not eat or grow any rice, but only corn. They cut down the forests and plant corn at an elevation of thirty-five hundred to four thousand feet on the elephant-shaped mountain of Dol Chang, on which they live. They are the dirtiest people I ever saw, barring not even the Tibetans. Their naked children wallow in the mire with the pigs. They are natives of Kweichow province, China, but have migrated over into Yunnan, and even into north Siam."

the contrary condition.
The more I think about it, the less I feel that anyone could feel "insulted" at what Congressman Ward says, except the professional backers who persuaded Mr. Coons to become a candidate, and they don't live in this Congressional district.

In fact, I feel highly complimented to live in a district that has a Congressman who is sufficiently broad-minded to form an independent judgment on what he has "observed within and without government departments," and having the courage of his convictions, stands up like a man and takes all of his constituents into his confidence. He might have back-stepped or side-stepped, but he didn't. Even when certain of attack because of previous threats he was courageous enough to say that from observation of the way it works out under the Volstead act, he believes neither in prohibition nor in the return of the saloon. Such a man is not a sham. He is a Congressman worth having, especially when his constituents know from experience what he has done for them. Such a man is a law-abiding citizen—able and courageous. Isn't that the kind of man we want to keep in Congress as our representative? No.

The new Goodyear
Cross-Rib Tread Cord

A Real Cord Tire for Small Cars at a Popular Price

The new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord in the 30 x 3½ inch clincher type is a tire that the small car owner will warmly welcome.

It gives him, at a price lower than the net price he is asked to pay for many "long discount" tires, every advantage of quality cord tire performance, for it is a quality tire through and through.

It is made of high-grade long-staple cotton; it embodies the reliable Goodyear quality of materials; its clean-cut tread engages the road like a cogwheel.

The scientific distribution of rubber in this tread—the wide center rib and the semi-flat contour—gives a thick, broad surface that is exceedingly slow to wear.

The tough tread stock in this tire is carried down the sidewalls clear to the bead, making it rut-proof to an extraordinary degree.

In every particular it is a representative Goodyear product, built to safeguard the world-wide Goodyear reputation.

Despite its high quality, and the expertness of its construction, it sells at a price as low or lower than that of tires which lack its important features.

OBSERVATIONS OF WARD UNDENIABLE

Enrolled Republican Supplements
Congressman's Observations On
Admitted Effect of Volstead Act—
Who Was Insulted?

to the Editor of The Freeman.
Sir:—I have read the statement of Mr. Westlake Coons of Ellenville attacking Congressman Charles B. Ward and his record.

Mr. Coons has shown himself to be easily persuaded by men living outside this Congressional district who induced him to enter the Republican primary to beat Mr. Ward. If they could, and his intimate affiliation with an organization which is trying to manipulate politics without assuming any of the responsibilities which the great political parties are compelled to assume, and also by his statements, has raised an issue on which he and the Anti-Saloon League are now conducting their campaign against Mr. Ward.

In addressing the Republican county convention on August 11, Mr. Ward, as quoted by The Freeman, said:
"I am opposed to the return of the saloon but on account of conditions which I have observed within and without governmental departments makes me more opposed than ever to prohibition."
Mr. Ward also said:
"I voted against the Volstead act because I believed it was encroaching too far on the rights of the individual. However, it is a law, and I always stand for the enforcement of the law."
Mr. Coons calls Mr. Ward's statement "a final insult."

Who does Mr. Ward insult?

Let me call attention to several

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

news items in the same issue of The Freeman in which Mr. Coons's statement was published:

Page 1 contains an account of three prominent men assaulting a man and two women at Woodstock, breaking a rib of the man, and the story in general leads to the inevitable conclusion that the men were intoxicated. I ask whether your readers can recall any instance before the Volstead act became a law in which any three prominent men of this county or any other county in this Congressional district misbehaved in that way or became intoxicated to the extent that anything they did warranted or received a big news story carrying a two column head as the Woodstock story did? As a matter of fact, intoxication of that kind, either among prominent or humble men, was comparatively unknown before the Volstead act created a new condition in America. I won't mention the big news stories of other equally prominent men in other counties or in other states who have sprung into similar prominence since we have had prohibition, because I want to be fair and speak only of what was published in the news columns of The Freeman on the same day that Mr. Coons's statement was published. Of course, other readers have memories the same as I have.

Page 1 reprints a news item from a paper published at Hobart, Delaware county, which is the home of Charles R. O'Connor, formerly the Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer for the state of New York, whose brother, A. Lindsay O'Connor, the present district attorney of Delaware county, is quoted as saying at a W. C. T. U. convention "that there was more liquor being manufactured and drunk in Delaware county than ever before." And the Hobart newspaper says that this is "not a very good record for a county that was the second one in the New York state where every town in a county voted dry under the local option law."

Page 3 has an account telegraphed from New York about "New Victim of Bootleg Feud."

Page 9 contains the police court report stating that a man was arrested "on a charge of public intoxication."

All this news about public intoxication is published at a time when the country is under prohibition. There was not much news about public intoxication before the Volstead act was passed. Either more people are drinking liquor now than before, or they are drinking more, or the liquor now used has greater power than the beverages, even liquor, that were in use before the Volstead act became a law.

Time has proved that the Volstead act puts a premium on dishonesty and lawlessness. It has raised from obscurity and poverty to prominence and wealth a class of men known as "bootleggers." Their rise to prominence and affluence has not been due to obeying the law, but is due to a condition created by the Volstead act itself, and its constant invitation for them to violate it.

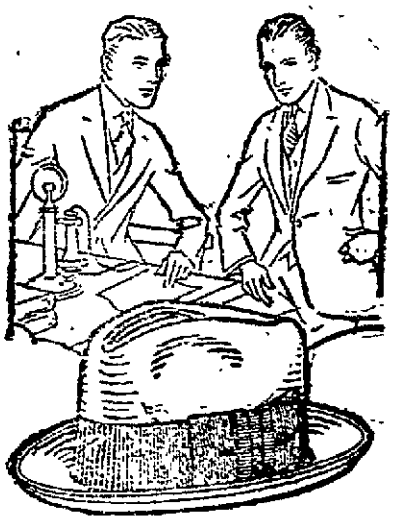

No other law within my memory has opened the door for honest men to become crooks, and invited them to make the change. The news columns of every newspaper in America prove it. At vast expense to government, the Volstead act has invited many honest public officials to paths of crooked wealth, and many such have been removed from office, others have been indicted and convicted.

And what of the trail of misery left in the path opened up and paved by the Volstead act? Blighted health, blindness and death. Was there as much of it before the Volstead act was passed? There is no possible way of checking this condition unless a vast army of informers is created at still more expense, unless a reward is paid to every person who peers into the windows of neighbors' kitchens or seeks to do as Judas Iscariot did. And meanwhile the medicinal and commercial use of everything containing alcohol is so restricted as to be burdensome with the natural result that impure and adulterated decoctions have everywhere appeared. Everywhere men and women have become branded as criminals, for whoever allows cider intended for beverage purpose to acquire more than one-half of one per cent alcohol—which it does within a few hours—is a Volstead act violator unless he has secured a red-tape permit.

Is a law which condemns by wholesale the people who for years have engaged in their customary pastimes and methods of living, to become criminals, instead of trying to check crime, a good law? Is it a just law?

So I read again with interest what Congressman Ward said at the Republican county convention in Kingston on August 11:
"I voted against the Volstead act because I believed it was encroaching too far on the rights of the individual. However, it is a law, and I always stand for the enforcement of the law. Time will prove without a doubt that it is impossible to enforce the law. I am opposed to the return of the saloon but on account of the conditions which I have observed within and without government departments makes me more than ever opposed to prohibition."

Who did Congressman Ward "insult," as Mr. Coons says? I, for one, believe in honesty in public as well as private life and in whatever will bring about that condition; and I am opposed to a law which creates

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE

GEORGE WILLIAM BANKS

(Contributed)

On Friday, September 1st George William Banks died.

He had lived most of his life in Kingston, and many hearts were sad at the news that he was gone from among us; for he had many friends of all ranks and stations—old and young, rich and poor, of different races and creeds. Quiet and unassuming in his manner, as he was, few men won so many warm friendships; for he had the gift of pleasant speech, and the grace of unselfishness and interest in those about him.

To the family with whom he had his home for many years, he was not only a faithful helper, but a valued and loyal friend. Even from visitors and relatives of the family there often came letters with messages of remembrance or kindly greetings for "William."

To his church, he gave his heart, love and service; from his busy life long hours were spent in thought and work over "Lions" financial business, while in the religious and social meetings, the minister could always count on his cordial aid. To the young men whose lives and his own he proved himself a wise and affectionate counselor, always trying to lead those who worked with him to a higher and purer idea of what life should be. A true Christian, a kind and courteous man, he always, at home and abroad, was treated with respect; for his own manners won such treatment from others.

To younger men of his race, there came, in these days, advantages in the way of education and cultivation such as was not possible in former years. They grew up eager for advancement and a conspicuous place among men—but—

Honor and Fame from no condition rise. Act well thy part—there all the honor lies.

These younger people will do well if they gain the respect of the community, and the verdict of "well done," from the judge of all the earth, as has this quiet man who has just left us.

HIGH SCHOOL GETS UNDER WAY

Organization Finished and Regular Schedule Begun—Excellent Football Prospects Disclosed at First Meeting—The Schedule.

Regular work has been resumed at Kingston High School. The influx of some two hundred freshmen, together with nearly all the underclassmen of last year, kept the faculty rather busy the last two days at straightening out programmes, reducing to normal the much-too-overcrowded classes, and fitting them out with roll call rooms, books and other necessities. Monday was taken up with transferring the students to their new roll call rooms, the room in which they sit being determined by the number of "counts" which they have earned. Wednesday Mr. Lewis ran the full number of periods and evened up the various classes, school being dismissed at noon both days. Today the regular schedule was begun.

Wednesday after the last period, Kenneth Le Fever, football manager for the coming season, called a meeting of all fellows interested in that sport. Prospects for Kingston having a good team this year, are very bright, as there were over seventy-five boys at the meeting. There are six of last year's first string men back; and their last year's positions are: Captain Kenneth Davis, full back; Ross Vogt, half back; Herbert Anderson, end; Stanley Colvin, full back; Earle McLane, tackle, and Joe Carroll, end. Practically all those who played on the second squad last year have returned, including Dave Bank, who captained the second team last season, and Seymour, "the last of the Goldbergs." Both of these fellows attracted considerable attention a year ago by their playing. Souers, who showed up very well two years ago, has returned to high school, and training. Efforts are being made to secure a good coach. It is expected that a coach will be here the last of this week, to start regular training. Preliminary training starts tonight.

Those who saw the notice concerning the alumni magazine, the other night will be interested to know that the providing of a suitable coach for the fellows was one of the main reasons for their trying to bring the organization more closely together. If the society is more united and the magazine is a success, it should prove a great help to the high school in both scholarship and athletics. Providing a good coach for the teams is the thing nearest the hearts of most of the male members of the organization. The first issue of the magazine is now assured. There are still a few spaces left where the business men interested in the high school, especially athletes, might place their ad, and thus do their bit toward turning out winning teams.

The schedule for the 1922 football season is as follows:

September 30—Kingston at Middletown.

October 7—Open.

October 14—Kingston at Poughkeepsie.

October 21—Newburgh at Kingston.

October 28—Saratoga Springs at Kingston.

November 4—Poughkeepsie at Kingston.

November 11—Kingston at Newburgh.

November 18—Kingston at Binghamton (pending.)

November 25—Stuyvesant High School, (New York City) at Kingston.

November 30—Open.

In addition to the above games for the Varsity, the management has scheduled a game for our second team with the seconds of Middletown High School, to be played in Kingston on September 30, the same day the first team travels to Middletown.

PRAISES KINGSTON'S FILTRATION PLANT

Newburgh Experts To Beat Design And Construction of Our Filter But Will Be Proud If They Get One That Produces Such Good Results.

The Newburgh News says: Keeper Chester E. Wolven of Washington Lake took an "extended vacation" of two days this week, and spent the greater part of Sunday and Monday inspecting the filter plant of the Kingston water works. In a report read at the meeting of the City Council last night, he said:

"On account of our own interest in filtration, it may not be amiss at this time to tell you a little of what I saw there. The consumption of water in Kingston is about the same as in Newburgh. There is what is known as a pressure filter, while the one under construction here is a gravity filter. The means used to remove contamination are similar. They remove from 95 to 97 per cent of impurities, and was shown by a test made in the writer's presence.

"They have a laboratory in the plant, where daily tests are made of both raw and treated water, for alkalinity, bacterial counts, and B. Coli communis, also the orthotoluidin test for chlorine efficiency. They get a practically sterile water by a dose of two pounds of chlorine to one million gallons of water, whereas we use here from six to eight pounds. They show no gas in ten cubic centimeters of water, and a plate removed after 48 hours' incubation, while I was there, showed no bacteria. Their plant seems to the writer to be very efficient.

"I do not hesitate to say that, in design and construction, we are going to have them 'beat a mile', and, if we can maintain an efficiency such as they do there, we will certainly have a plant of which we may feel proud. And I can see no reason why we cannot do this very thing."

BREGMAN REWARDED BY LIGHT FOR FINDING PURSE

Louis Bregman tells the following story of how he found money lying in the gutter in front of Charles Silver's store on Washington avenue and also of the find of a pocketbook in the store, the pocketbook containing $1.03, the roll in the gutter $1.7. It all happened Tuesday noon, and when asked to give it up by Leroy Light, who claimed he had dropped it, Bregman would not because Light could not answer the questions showing rightful ownership. Bregman says Light called for the police, when he took a walk on business, but before the police arrived he had turned over the money to Light who rewarded him with two dollars. Bregman also says the officer told Light to have him arrested.

PIRATES RAID WET VESSELS AND JEER AT THE DRY NAVY

Lawless and the Law Look Alike to Buccaneers Operating Near New York.

The presence in outer New York harbor of a phantom run pirate, which pounces on liquor smugglers by night and joshes the prohibition navy by day, was revealed to customs officials when the United States run scout Taylor returned to port after trying for a week to capture this modern Captain Kidd.

Numerous tales of the escapades of the mystery ship, which has thrown consternation into the fleet of non-descript craft engaged in coastwise liquor smuggling, were brought in by the Taylor's crew.

The name of the craft is unknown, for none of its victims or pursuers has seen a single mark of identification on its mist-gray hull. The vessel's lines were described as those of a high-speed cruiser, over 60 feet in length and propelled by two noiseless gasoline motors.

The pirate captain is said to be a daredevil disciple of the Captain Kidd he emulates. His crew of eight are an armed gang of reckless outlaws who carry automatic pistols instead of cutlasses.

Their craft hovers just outside the twelve-mile limit, at the end of the ocean lane traveled by tugs, schooners, trawlers and yachts engaged in hauling liquor from Nassau, Bahamas, and St. John, N. S., to New York and New Jersey customers.

An instance of the pirates' method was recited by a member of the Taylor's crew as follows:

A smuggler's craft was anchored outside the safety of the twelve-mile limit, waiting for the speedy harbor launch which would transfer its cargo of impounded liquor to bootleggers ashore.

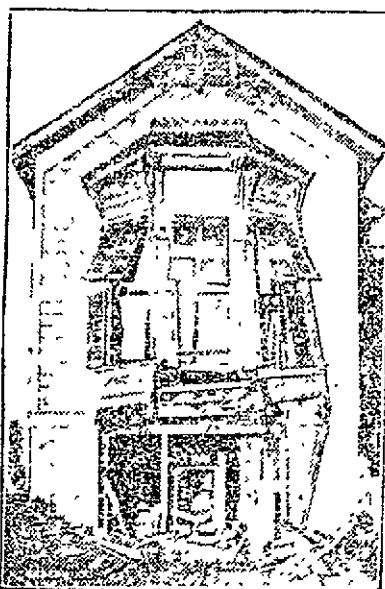

Suddenly the pirate ship appeared out of the evening mist and drew alongside. Its skipper boarded the anchored vessel, flashed a huge roll of currency and bargained for the purchase of 200 cases of whiskey.

When the liquor had been transferred from the hold of one vessel to the other the pirate calmly stuffed his roll out of sight and leaped aboard his own craft. The victimized crew ran for their guns. When they returned they found themselves looking into the muzzles of eight automatic pistols, as the mystery ship suddenly dove into the darkness. This quick disappearance act has earned the pirate ship the name of Pelican.

Capt. D. S. McDonald of the Taylor reported having seen the Pelican several times during the week he was on its trail, but never once did it venture inside the twelve-mile limit without whisking away to safety when the Taylor hove in sight.

Sometimes, said McDonald, the Volstead Captain Kidd would shout an invitation to the crew of the rum chaser to have a drink. At other times the crew would line the rail in a safe distance—drinking from a newly opened bottle of liquor.

WHAT A STREET CAR DID TO HOUSE IN PORTLAND

A motorman in Portland, Ore., recently failed to notice that his car had reached the end of the line. Consequently it kept right on going plowed across a lawn and butted into the front of a residence that stood in its path. The car failed to knock the house out of its way, but it nearly succeeded. A bay window was demolished and the interior was badly wrecked. The family happened to be out in the yard at the time and no one was injured.

Bermuda has given way and will now have automobiles, under public control. A majority of the legislative body of Bermuda has at last agreed to permit a system of motorbuses for passengers and freight. Private motorcars, however, will stay under the ban.

After religiously excluding the motorcar and permitting only horses and bicycles, Bermuda has declared for the motorcar, but only as a public conveyance with its operation and management subject to strict surveillance. —The Nation's Business

Is Your Kitchen Infested with Evil Spirits?

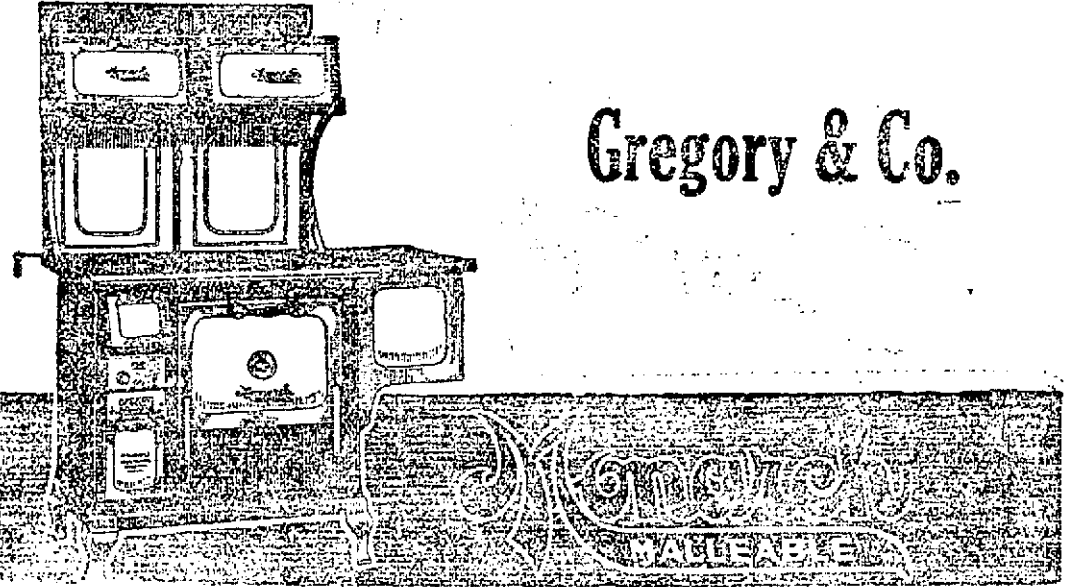

If so, a Monarch Range will clear them out.

And what's more, they will stay away, for a Monarch is not subject to the many ailments most ranges suffer when they get to be a few years old.

The way to prevent trouble in future years is to build a range RIGHT to start with,—so it will stay tight.

We sell the Monarch because we know it is built right. If you will come in, we will be glad to show you exactly what we mean. We will show you why the only way to build a range for permanent satisfaction is with unbreakable malleable iron and hand riveting at every joint. There is only one right way to do anything—and that is the right way to build a range.

You will be delighted at the handsome appearance of the Monarch—and also to know how easy it is to keep it clean and looking like new. The moderate price will surprise you.

Schooner William H. Smith. Skipper Nels Peter Janssen.

The captain and crew of the four-masted schooner William H. Smith, which reached San Francisco after a voyage of 143 days from East, Solomon Islands, suffered for a long period because of the lack of food. They gave much credit to the skipper's wife, Mrs. Nels Peter Janssen, who cheered them in their distress. The schooner left Sydney February 7, and eleven days later a bouncing baby boy was born to Mrs. Janssen. It was discovered too late that the greater part of the food put aboard at Sydney was unfit to eat. The cook became ill, and Mrs. Janssen took his place. There were three other little Janssens besides the baby to look after—Madge, fourteen; Constance, nine, and William, seven. The crew was finally reduced to a ration of one pound of food a day. On August 14 the motorship Annie Johnson was sighted, and she furnished provisions. Mrs. Janssen has sailed all over the world for the last fifteen years, but will never go again, preferring to live in the home her husband has bought for her in San Francisco.
